The U.S. Army Brass Trio

Formed in 1997, The United States Army Brass Trio has set out on a mission of excellence in chamber music performance. The members of the trio come from The U.S. Army Ceremonial and Concert Bands. Staff Sergeant Kenneth Rittenhouse on trumpet, Staff Sergeant Joseph Lovinsky, french horn, and Sergeant First Class George Allen, trombone. The utilization of the brass trio has been a great recruiting tool for The Army Band, and the Army community as well. The trio repertoire covers a diverse range of musical styles such as jazz, classical, latin and holiday music. The trio has performed for music conferences throughout the United States, and can be made available to perform and give master classes for universities and high schools.
